

Officeworks helped a kids' charity find the right furniture solution for their new centre.

Client: Hear and Say

Hear and Say is a not-for-profit organisation whose mission is to enable all children who are deaf to hear, listen and speak so they can attend regular school, have wider career choices and can more fully participate in their community. Hear and Say provides a range of services and programs to over 2000 children, students, young adults and families.

We were approached to help fit-out Hear and Say's brand new space with commercial-grade task chairs for all staff, as well as a boardroom table that would fit comfortably into a challenging space.

Total Personnel: 60+ employees

Project Time Frame: 7 weeks

Solution: Colourful visitor chairs for families, task chairs for team members and a designer boardroom table

Furniture Budget: $34K

Having worked with us previously for stationery supplies and office chairs, Hear and Say felt Officeworks was the natural choice for furniture at their new centre.

After their initial phone call, we arranged to deliver trial furniture to help them see exactly how each piece would work in the space. This was especially useful when it came to choosing a boardroom table that would work within an unusually small room and also match the décor.

After supplying samples of different finishes at Hear and Say's request, the final solution included a boardroom table they're delighted with and works well within the space, along with task chairs and visitor chairs that fully meet their expectations.

"From initial enquiries to final delivery, customer service was excellent. The final products look wonderful and have provided us with excellent workable spaces."
